THE KING SERIOUSLY ILL.

Coronation is Postponed Indefinitely. His Majesty is Operated upon for Periphylitis. Is now Sleeping Quietly.

Mr. Austin, Free Press agent here, received the following telegram from his paper at noon to-day:

London, England, June 24.—The coronation ceremonies have been indefinitely postponed on account of the King's illness. His Majesty has been successfully operated upon for periphylitis. At two o'clock this afternoon the King was sleeping quietly.

"Periphylitis" is inflammation of the tissues surrounding the large bowel. An abscess sometimes forms, when it becomes necessary to operate to remove the pus. While being of course dangerous, the disease is not necessarily fatal, if diagnosed promptly and operated upon at the right time by clever surgeons. The operation necessitates absolute quiet for some time afterwards, hence the indefinite postponement of His Majesty's coronation.

Later—This afternoon's latest bulletins state that the King is bearing up well after the operation, and his recovery is expected in from three to four weeks. The disease which so suddenly attacked His Majesty is an inflammation of the tissues about the vermiform appendix, and is akin to appendicitis.

Ottawa, June 24.—The Dominion government has recalled the proclamation making Thursday, June 26th a public holiday.

informing on him the last time he was in, so that this will likely be one more charge laid against him. After hearing an account of the affair the judge remanded the prisoner until to-morrow at 10 o'clock.

KILLED ON THE TRACK.

William Hornby struck by an incoming train. Expires in three hours.

While walking the track early Sunday morning William Hornby, aged 37 years, was struck by an incoming freight train, and was so terribly injured that he died three hours afterwards. The accident occurred just outside the C. P. R. yard limit in the first rock cut. The crew of the freight train gave the alarm as soon as they reached the station, and a gang of men immediately repaired to the scene of the accident when Hornby was found still alive but unconscious. He was brought to the hospital, but he breathed his last about three hours afterwards.

Deceased, who was a native of England, was at one time in the band of a Hussar regiment, and served during the Soudan campaign with his corps. Afterwards coming to Canada he settled at Port Arthur but left there about four years ago and came to Rat Portage. He was a good musician and the Citizens Band soon found work for him as a painter. He became a member of this organization as baritone player but when this band fell with desuetude, he drifted into any kind of work, and earned but a very precarious livelihood.

The funeral took place at 3 o'clock today from St. Albans Church to Union Park cemetery. It is not known whether he has any relatives in this country.

ELECTION FOR RAT PORTAGE

WILL WORK ELDORADO.

Northern Light Gold Mining Co'y, have purchased this rich claim and stamp mill.

A deal has just been consummated whereby the Northern Light Gold Mining company acquire twelve mining locations, including the Eldorado mine, situated on Eagle Lake. It is the intention of the company to begin operations on the latter property at once, using the two stamp mill and camps of the mine. The Eldorado is the Gatenbury property, which fell into litigation some time ago owing to trouble between the owners. The legal difficulties have, however, been fixed up at last, and this well known property will be systematically developed by the new company. The stamp mill, which has a capacity of about five tons per day, will be used for testing the ore from all the Northern Light company's claims situated in the vicinity, and to make it more complete a concentrating plant will be installed, so that the entire value of all the ores may be known as development proceeds. The Eldorado mine will be developed first.

The Richards & Pringle's Minstrels will present a mammoth bill of merry minstrelsy at the Hillfield Opera house on Saturday, June 28.

This season the organization numbers fifty performers and presents a choice collection of mirth-provoking and novel acts never seen here before. The whole bill is a "screamer" from beginning to end. Every phase of good minstrelsy and vaudeville is presented and the program is crowded with big hits, in the way of latest songs, dances, acrobaticisms, comedians, aerialists, quartette, the military sensation "The Black Watch Drill," a score of funny end men, an oriental first part, with brilliant Japanese settings and costumes—a positive novelty in minstrelsy—and an abundance of other features that stamp this organization the best and most liberally equipped of its kind playing here this season. It travels in its own train of private cars, carries a magnificent orchestra, two brass bands and stylish English dog-carts drawn by Kentucky thoroughbred horses, all of which are seen in its attractive street parade, which takes place at 2.30 p. m.

MINER MAKING BAD RECORD.

John Stewart, a powerfully built miner, appeared before Judge Robinson this morning in the police court to answer to charges of threatened arson, carrying concealed weapons, assault and resisting arrest.

Stewart a few weeks ago threatened to burn a house of ill-fame, and an information being laid against him by the proprietress, he skipped for the wood. Remaining concealed until Saturday night, when he returned to town. The police spotted him, and Constable Eamon, the provincial officer, accompanied by municipal police Constable Johnson, went to his haunt, and after considerable struggle finally presented him with a pair of bracelets. It appears that he attempted to choke the proprietress of the haunt on Sunday morning for

THE GREATNESS OF BRITAIN.

"The peace which Great Britain has made with the Boers," says the New York Investor, "is calculated to impress one anew with the greatness of the British Empire and of the British character. Great Britain has come out of the war in a manner profoundly to impress minds that are raised above prejudice and passion with the fact that she is still the most humane, the most generous, the most self-reliant of nations. She deprives the conquered of no real liberty, she devotes several years of time, hundreds of millions of money, and a great many thousands of lives to the task of making a handful of stiff-necked Dutchmen accord her citizens equal justice, but when this task is accomplished she does not generously which is unparalleled, exacting a sum to cover her enormous expenditures, but a great amount of cash to put her former formidable material circumstances once more in harmony denotes fundamental characteristics of the British race which it is impossible to conceive otherwise must be regarded as bringing a long-continued greatness."

PLAY YOUR OWN GAME.

"Why," says a young man as lying, "quoit Hamlet to Guildenstern when sought to get him to essay his skill upon the fate. He did only to govern the veins with his fingers and then to utter a word and blow his breath into the instrument of it and discourse most excellent music. So to aim to Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States corporation, material success in life seems so perfectly to him that he imagines that he can impart the secret to youth by glib advice. In a recent address to the graduating class at a Pennsylvania college he catalogued, among other open sesame to wealth, this exhortation: 'Be original.' If a young man would not follow the beaten path, he told them, he would thereby attract attention and win promotion."

This goes without saying. It is a truth so obvious that there are few who haven't thought of it. But to think of it, and to do it, or to be it, are quite different problems. How can a man be original if nature has not endowed him with powers of mind to make him so? Suppose he would say to a student: "Be tall, for a noble height gives distinction," or, "Start in life with a strong and virile constitution, for this gives endurance." The poor boy would like to have these admirable physical qualities. How can a man by thinking and one could to his stature? Can he by wishing himself be an original genius, or a genius of any kind?

Guildenstern declines Hamlet's request to make an attempt upon the quoit, easy as it seemed, because he had no skill in it. So in the game of life it is well to avoid attempts at tasks one is not fitted for, but to strive to do one's own game, for something useful and stick to that. It is a game and not another man's should be the motto. The man who does this will be able to meet with some degree of success.

the Americans or the English capitalists are supplying the larger proportion of this assistance is a big question. Personally I do not care to express an opinion on the point. However, Canada's prosperity in the future is assured."

The Alaska-Treadwell Mining Company uses a hydrolic press for squeezing the excess of mercury from the gold amalgam obtained from the mill clean-up. The amalgam is put into bags of canvas, which are placed in a cylinder, the walls of which are perforated. A ram is forced into this cylinder and against the bags with great pressure. The amalgam obtained in this way is much richer than that obtained by hand squeezing. Besides, the operation is quicker.

A correspondent sends a clipping from a San Francisco paper in which Governor Brady of Alaska discusses the soil possibilities in Alaska. Governor Brady declares the finest farm land in the world exists in that distant territory and that it will one day be the greatest agricultural possession of the United States. Our correspondent oppositely remarks: "If this is true of Alaska what about the Yukon Territory and northern British Columbia in Canada?"

A Los Angeles man, who is suing a railroad company for damages claims that on account of said company's negligence his right arm was broken in three places, his right hand smashed and the fingers amputated, all ribs on right side broken, two ribs of left side broken, left arm broken, collar bone broken, ear torn off, nearly all teeth knocked out, besides other permanent injuries. At the rate of damages usually claimed for one broken bone or a bad bruise, he should have demanded the whole railroad as damages.

The New York Sun's special correspondent writes: "Today we saw St. Pierre, the ghastliest ghost of the modern centuries. But yesterday the fairest of the fair of the wondrous cities of the storied Antilles, bright, beautiful, glorious, glistening, and shimmering in her prism of tropical radiance, an opalescent city in a setting of towering forest and mountain; now a waste of ashen gray without life, form, color, shape a drear monotone, a dim blur on the landscape—it seems even more than the contrast between life and death. The dead may live, St. Pierre is not alive and never will be. Out of shape has come a void. It is the apothosis of annihilation. To one who sits amid the ruins and gazes the long miles upward over the sea and sides of La Pelee still thundering her terrible wrath, may come some conception of the future ruin of the world."

A question which has not been raised, so far as we are aware, but which seems to deserve some consideration, relates to the patent law which will obtain under the new Transvaal government. As is well known, the courts of the South African Republic held that the M. Arthur-Forrest cyanide patents were not valid, and mining companies were freed from the payment of royalties under those patents. But under English law the patents are valid. Will the British decision hold good in the new Crown colony? Will the law of the old government prevail? Or will entirely new regulations be made in the new patent matters? As all the Witwatersrand companies use the cyanide process, this seems to be a point which should be decided at an early date. Of course, the law of the old republic as to mining claims will hold good for all mines located under it, but the continued use of a process is a different matter.—English Mining Journal.

The Council received a batch of letters.

Indian Curios.

Probably one of the most interesting Indian curios ever brought here was received from the north by the Tees in the shape of a piece of copper formerly owned by Chief Skowell, who in his time was one of the most powerful and wealthy Indian chiefs in Alaska. The copper is part of the equipment of every chief of any standing, and the use of it is put to is quite characteristic. If the chief has a difference with a neighboring chief he hucks off a piece of copper to indicate his power and wealth, and when the difference has been settled and peace restored, it is riveted on again. The piece which has just arrived has been riveted five times, indicating that Skowell had one inch in length, eleven inches wide at the centre and sixteen and a half inches at the top. Ethnologists are keenly interested in Indian curios from all over America. B. C. Times.

If you have a dime, don't make yourself believe it is a dollar. That is what you do when you stop work to tell what a good man you are.—Athenian.

People Who Have Used It

Say that Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine affords wonderfully prompt relief for coughs and colds. Everybody has confidence in Dr. Chase, in his great recipe book and famous family remedies. They have learned by experience that it pays to insist on having Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine instead of accepting the various unsatisfactory "mix-ups" which some druggists offer as "just as good." Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine contains many of the most valuable and most effective remedial agents for throat and lung troubles that science has discovered. It acts so directly and promptly as to be of incalculable worth in all cases of croup, bronchitis and whooping cough. It is so far-reaching in its effects as to loosen the tightest chest cough and cure the cold of long standing. 25c a bottle; family size, three times as much. ## The Blush.

From the purely artistic point of view the power to blush is one of the most requisite and commendable of physical endowments. Old men are past blushing; very young children, idiots and the lower animals cannot blush; but it appears that some tribes still on the outskirts of barbarism preserve the faculty to an astonishing degree.

The blush is a grace of life, a mark of vitality and of youthfulness. It betokens a great cerebral sensibility according to a perfectly sensitive skin. By a sort of instinct for personal defense at the slightest attack—a word or a mere glance—there is a rush of energy.
I say energy, and not emotion. The heart beats no faster, but a signal from the brain sends a rush of all the spare blood to the skin, and, owing to the congestion of the small blood vessels, an extraordinary glow spreads over the face to the tips of the ear, to the roots of the hair, to the throat, sometimes even to the top of the bosom.

Darwin saw the back of a young girl blush and declares that in certain circumstances blushing may suffuse the whole body. It is as though the mind were hanging a curtain before the body to assert its right of precedence.—
Luigi Ciavere, "The Art of Life."

Killing a Baby.

When Frank R. Stockton had planned out his book of Pomona's travels and was about ready to write it, he resided in Philadelphia. He had a business appointment with his dentist, an old friend, one day, when the following incident, told by himself, occurred:

"While in the chair I got to talking with this friend about my new book. I told him I had serious thoughts of killing that baby. He was much interested. We talked over the advisability of doing this, and, while he was not quite convinced, he in the main agreed with me. I had been finished with and clasping his hand, went into the waiting room on my way out. This waiting room was filled with women.

"As I passed through the door I heard him call, 'Then you have positively decided to kill that baby?' Positively,' I replied.

"You should have seen the women stare. It was not until I got well out in the hallway that I realized what they must of course have been thinking."

Milnes' Hospitable Managerie.

W. Gordon McCabe says that when Stockton Milnes, the poet, aspired to grasp the social literary scepter falling from the withered hands of Rogers he gathered around his breakfast table in Pall Mall men of the most diverse personalities, creeds and tastes. In fact, the chief requirement for securing an invitation to these breakfasts, which soon became the talk of London, seems to have been that the guest must be a blow of some sort. Men of such pronounced differences as Count d'Orsay,
the elegant dandy; the rugged Thomas Carlyle, Sydney Smith, the brilliant wit, and Connon Thirlwall, the grave historian, sat there side by side, and had Buffalo Bill burst upon the town in those days Mr. McCabe thinks he too, would undoubtedly have rubbed elbows in Milnes' hospitable managerie with Tom Macaulay and Aubrey de Vere.

Precedent.

A clever answer in court was that given to Chief Justice Coleridge years ago, when he was defending a lady who had become a Sister of Mercy and was expelled from the convent for refusing to obey the rules.

She had brought an action for expulsion and libel. In the course of the trial Coleridge assumed that breaches of discipline are trivial, contemptible and should never be noticed.

"What has Miss Savin done?" he asked Mrs. Kennedy, a mistress of novices.

"Well," said the lady, "she has, for example, eaten strawberries."

"Eaten strawberries? What harm is there in that?"

"It was forbidden, sir," said Mrs.
Kennedy.

"But, Mrs. Kennedy, what trouble was likely to come from eating strawberries?"

"Well, sir," said Mrs. Kennedy, "you might as well ask what trouble was likely to come from eating an apple, and yet we know what trouble did come from it."

That closed the discussion.

Too Much For the Sheriff.

An Irish widow with a quick wit one day received a call from a sheriff who had a writ to serve on her. According to the story, the widow saved the day by some rapid fire courting which took the sheriff by surprise when he called at her house and began in formal fashion:

"Madam, I have an attachment for you."

"My dear sir," she said, blushing.
"your attachment is reciprocated."

"You don't understand me. You must proceed to court," said the sheriff.

"Well, I know 'ds leap year, but I prefer to let you do the courting yourself. Men are much better at that than women."

"Mrs. Phelan, this is no time for fooling. The justice is waiting."

"The justice waiting! Well, then, I suppose I must go, but the thing is so sudden, and besides I'd prefer a priest to do it."

A Useful Woman.

"Blennerhasset," said Mrs. Bliggins
as he was about to start down town,
"can you let me have a little money to run the house with today?"

"You can have just 50 cents," he growled, flinging the coin at her and slamming the door behind him as he went out.

"By the way, Bliggins," said a friend who dropped into his place of business an hour or two later, "will you go my security on a note for $500?"
"Shortleigh," replied Bliggins, "it is an indexible rule in my family that I must never do anything of that kind without consulting my wife."

A Summer Without Nights.

To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 10 o'clock and rises again four hours later during a greater part of the month of June.
But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness. The refraction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday.

from the withered hands of Rogers he gathered around his breakfast table in Fall Mail men of the most diverse personalities, creeds and tastes. In fact, the chief requirement for securing an invitation to these breakfasts, which soon became the talk of London, seems to have been that the guest must be a lion of some sort. Men of such pronounced differences as Count d'Orsay, the elegant dandy; the rugged Thomas Carlyle, Sydney Smith, the brilliant wit, and Connop Thirlwall, the grave historian, sat there side by side, and had Buffalo Bill burst upon the town for those days Mr. McCabe thinks he, too, would undoubtedly have rubbed elbows in Milnes' hospitable menagerie with Tom Macaulay and Aubrey de Vere.

What a Widow Is.
It was a Sunday school class, and the teacher believed in asking questions to see how clearly the scholars understood their lessons. The widow of Ham was the subject, and the teacher thought she would be quickly answered when she asked, "What is a widow?" There was a silence until she nudged to the small boy at her left and said, "You know what a widow is, don't you?" for she knew the boy's mother was one.

"Yes'm," he answered; "it's a lady what takes in washing."

Enlightening the Minister.
"We are going to have pie for dinner," said Bobby to the minister.

"Indeed!" laughed the clergyman, amused at the little boy's artlessness. "And what kind of pie, Bobby?"

"It's a new kind. Ma was talking this morning about pa bringing you to dinner so often, and pa said he didn't care what she thought, and ma said she'd make him eat humble pie before the day was over, and I suppose we're going to have it for dinner."

Light, For All Its Weight.
"I thought all the toasts tonight were to be of a light and amusing nature?"

"They are."

"But you have Binks down for a topic that is decidedly heavy and serious."

"Of course. If there is anything funnier than Binks trying to tackle a great principle that he doesn't fully understand I don't know what it is."

Ostrich Plumes.
All the black and white plumes come from the male ostrich, the gray from the female. The feathers are not plucked out, as you might imagine, but are clipped off with a sharp knife, leaving the end of the quill in the flesh, where it remains for two or three months, until it "dies," when it is pulled out with forceps.

His Lucrative Business.
"Wanted—For a lucrative business, a partner who must be a practical locksmith." This advertisement appeared in a Hudsons paper recently. The advertiser is now in jail, the police having discovered that the lucrative business referred to was burglary.

Smart Child.
"You never saw my hands as dirty as yours," said a mother to her little girl. "No, but grandmother did," was the reply.—Motherhood.

"Shortleigh," replied Bliggins, "it is an inflexible rule in my family that I must never do anything of that kind without consulting my wife."

A Summer Without Night.
To the summer visitor in Sweden there is nothing more striking than the almost total absence of night. At Stockholm, the Swedish capital, the sun goes down a few minutes before 10 o'clock and rises again four hours later during a greater part of the month of June. But the four hours the sun lies hidden in the frozen north are not hours of darkness. The refraction of his rays as he passes around the north pole makes midnight as light as a cloudy midday and enables one to read the finest print without artificial light at any time during the "night."

The Names of Two Cities.
On the principle of "In Rome do as the Romans do" I think it a safe rule to pronounce the name of a place, as the residents of that place do, says a writer. Hence we should speak of St. Louis as though it were written "St. Lewis," not "St. Louee." All good Missourians say "St. Lewis." It is a little difficult to put down in black and white the local pronunciation of New Orleans, but it is something like this, "New Aw-lyins," with the strong accent on the "Awl."

An Appropriate Text.
A preacher in an eastern city was a little fellow, so little that a box had to be hastily brought from the cellar for him to stand on. The services proceeded safely until the sermon, when he mounted the box and announced his text, "A little while ye shall see me and a little while and ye shall not see me." At this point the box broke, and the prophecy was verified amid the smothered laughter of the congregation.

Two Sides.
"You'd make a pretty good clerk," said the employer sarcastically, "if you only had a little more common sense."

"Indeed!" replied the clerk. "But did it ever occur to you that if I had a little more common sense I wouldn't be a clerk at all?"

First Business Lesson.
"What is the first thing a young business man should learn?" was asked of the successful one.

"That waiting bills is not collecting money," was the prompt reply.

A Great Pity.
The Scotch are great users of snuff. It was a Scotchman who once asked a big nosed stranger if he took snuff and, receiving a negative reply, remarked: "What a pity. You have such a grand accommodation."

Its Recommendation.

CHASING A GHOST.

The Way Whale Hunters Are Sometimes Fooled by "Spoutings."

While the right whale is not so large nor so vicious as the sperm whale, the danger of hunting it is greater. In company with a fleet of ships, all bound for the arctic whaling grounds, says a writer in a contemporary, we sailed from San Francisco in February, and early in April we encountered the edge of the ice in Bering sea. The whales live far in the ice, and thither we went to find them. One day a mother seal with a pup would not fly because of the... holding her ground quietly with fear in her eyes, while the pup... our... at our presumption in... them.

We had been "hunting" for more than a week when we reached Cape Navarin on the Siberian coast, a bleak, mountainous, dreary place. The next morning we saw another ship coming toward us, the dense black smoke from her try works showing she had recently caught a whale. In the afternoon we pushed on beyond the cape, and the lookout was cautioned to be extra vigilant. From his place in the crow's nest he scoured the sea with long glass, and presently there came the

M. Gustaf Anderson, whose husband died a few weeks ago, leaving the family in destitute circumstances wishes to thank the people of Rat Portage who so kindly came to her aid in her hour of need.

COOKING HINTS.

Don't salt cucumbers or eggplant before cooking. It makes them indigestible and unpalatable.

Avoid peeling rhubarb when it is young and tender, for it only needs wiping with a damp cloth before using.

A piece of tough meat can be very nicely stewed in a double boiler. It will take twice as long, however, as if cooked directly over the fire.

Fish which contain few bones may be converted into fillets by dividing the flesh from the backbone to long, wide strips and then removing any smaller bones. Such supply the best fillets.

Crisks and crumbs of bread left over from the table should be dried, put in a bag for rolling and dipping, or to be used in making cakes or mixed with a few sliced apples and baked and served as a pudding.
